

WORLD'S Campaign Circulation Averaged per day,
391,734.
Total Campaign Circulation four months
preceding election,
48,183,317.

PRICE ONE CENT.

LAST EDITION.

OUT OF THE FLAMES.

An Accused Wife's Letters Recovered by Her Husband.

His Hands Were Terribly Burned In Securing Proof Against Her.

She Is Very Beautiful and Her
Alleged Lover Is a Married Man.

The hands which George C. Tyler presented this morning, attached to a body and a smiling face, bore mute testimony of a convincing kind that he believed it when he said that he had snatched from the flames proof that the affections of his young and beautiful wife had been alienated from him by Mortimer F. Taylor, the wealthy St. Louis man who was "backing" Henry Guy Carleton's play, "The Earle Trouble," and a "Gilded Fool."

The trouble commenced in a West Twenty-third street tenement, at twilight yesterday evening, when George C. Tyler rushed through the house upon his wife's room and with brandished revolver proclaimed that she had played him false.

She denied it, and then threw a handful of letters into the open grate, from whence the terrified husband rescued them with his bare hands.

Made a Scene in Hotel Noyes.
Then he left the house and, leaping into a cab, drove direct to the Hotel Noyes, Central Park plaza.

The pale-faced man rushed through the lobbies of Italian marble to the desk, and asked with tattered breath for Mortimer F. Taylor.

On being informed that Mr. Taylor was dining with his wife and daughter, he repaired to the entrance to the magnificent dining-room, and repeated his request that his card be sent to Mr. Taylor. The card was returned with word that Mr. Taylor did not wish to see his caller.

"But I must see him. I will see him," exclaimed Tyler. "Tell him that I would better see him, and see me now," he added.

Detective John K. Kerr, of the hotel, interposed and asked abruptly:

"Have you a pistol?"
"Oh, I don't want to kill him. He isn't worth killing. I'll let him live and suffer," replied the white-faced man, without raising his voice, and then adding:

"Yes, I've got a pistol. Here it is. You may keep it. And here is my penknife; take that, too."

At this moment Mr. Taylor appeared at the door and led Tyler out to the street. Tyler seemed to be speechless at first, but finally vented himself by calling Mr. Taylor several very uncomplimentary names. Then he went away and Mr. Taylor returned to his wife and daughter.

A Wronged Husband's Story.
All this was done so quickly that none of the guests of the hotel were aware of the trouble, and they were still in ignorance this morning.

"You see," said the young husband, at the apartments of his friend, John Gilbert, to-day—and there were tears in his voice—"you see I first met and loved Cora Parsons when she was in San Francisco, two years ago, as business manager for James O'Neill's 'Monte Cristo.'"

"She was a school teacher—and the loveliest woman I ever saw. She is yet, and I love her now, as I did then—to my own undoing. She was twenty years old, tall, a brunette and adorable."

"Well, she came to Chicago last April, and we were married."
"I have been with 'Ye Earle Trouble' company till recently. My wife became acquainted with the wealthy and powerful Mortimer F. Taylor. I introduced him to her myself, at Chillicothe, Ohio. He was very attentive to her. He was my friend, I thought, and I never suspected anything from his last evening."

LAST EDITION.

5 KILLED, 15 INJURED.

Schoolhouse Filled with Democrats Blown Up by Powder.

One Man Roasted Alive in the Burning Ruins.

Terrible Killing of a Jollification in an Arkansas Town.

By Associated Press.
FAVARTTOWN, Ark., Nov. 17.—Anvil being and the discharge of fireworks were features of a Democratic jollification at Mountain View last night.

A quantity of explosives had been stored in the schoolhouse, where the celebration took place, and during the speckmaning, while the firing was in progress, two kegs of powder exploded.

The schoolhouse was wrecked and most of its occupants buried in the ruins. Those who could extricate themselves sat about at once to rescue the others.

Shrieks and moans came from the mass of wrecked timbers, and it was evident that the humanity was terrible.

The debris took fire in several places, and it required hard work to prevent the cremation of the persons who were imprisoned. The flames were subdued, however, only one person suffering from the fire.

A son and daughter of Miss Graham were taken out and Berry, a negro, was the most prominent residents of Washington county, was so badly injured that he has died.

Another man, whose name has not been learned, was also killed.

Fifteen persons were injured, some fatally, their names have not been learned here. The bodies of the victims were found in the ruins, and were taken out by the fire department.

The bodies of the victims were found in the ruins, and were taken out by the fire department.

The bodies of the victims were found in the ruins, and were taken out by the fire department.

The bodies of the victims were found in the ruins, and were taken out by the fire department.

The bodies of the victims were found in the ruins, and were taken out by the fire department.

The bodies of the victims were found in the ruins, and were taken out by the fire department.

The bodies of the victims were found in the ruins, and were taken out by the fire department.

The bodies of the victims were found in the ruins, and were taken out by the fire department.

The bodies of the victims were found in the ruins, and were taken out by the fire department.

The bodies of the victims were found in the ruins, and were taken out by the fire department.

The bodies of the victims were found in the ruins, and were taken out by the fire department.

The bodies of the victims were found in the ruins, and were taken out by the fire department.

PONIES AND BEAUTIES DEFIES THE COURTS.

Te-Day's Attractions at the Madison Square Garden Horse Show.

Fine Weather Greatly Increases the Fashionable Throngs.

Mounted Police to Give an Exhibition in the Ring To-Night.

The horse show at Madison Square Garden is the great attraction of the hour, and with the return of fine weather is drawing greater crowds than ever. Last evening the attendance was larger than at any time since the show opened, and the wide promenade around the tank-bark arena was so choked up with spectators that the only way to the boxes and the balcony seats was by the courage to venture into the crush below.

Lovers of fine horses found plenty last evening to call forth their admiration—that is, those who could get near enough to the inclosure to see what was going on within, for the great majority of the standing crowd turned their backs upon the ring and devoted their attention to examining the boxes and making mental as well as audible observations regarding their occupants.

It is really fashionable society which is on exhibition at the horse show and not the thoroughbreds in the ring, and there is no pretense about it whatever. Some of the crowd go to look at the show, but the vast majority of the show is for the inspection with very good grace. In fact, they seem to enjoy it immensely, and evidently appreciate the attention of the starting crowds much more than the horses do.

This was the day for police, and the Garden was crowded with children this morning. There were a goodly number on hand to see the horses go through their morning exercise, which takes up the hour from 9 to 10. A hundred or more fine animals were prancing and snorting around the arena at a time, and some of them were ridden, but most of them were led.

After the morning exercise, the horses were taken to the ring, and the mounted police were given an exhibition in the ring to-night.

The feature of the evening will be the parade of the prize winners, an exhibition of the most beautiful specimens of horseflesh. The big thick-set Normans and shire horses, which take up the hour from 9 to 10. A hundred or more fine animals were prancing and snorting around the arena at a time, and some of them were ridden, but most of them were led.

In the afternoon the card includes the judging of trotting stallions, horses in harness, and the show of the day.

The feature of the evening will be the parade of the prize winners, an exhibition of the most beautiful specimens of horseflesh. The big thick-set Normans and shire horses, which take up the hour from 9 to 10. A hundred or more fine animals were prancing and snorting around the arena at a time, and some of them were ridden, but most of them were led.

In the afternoon the card includes the judging of trotting stallions, horses in harness, and the show of the day.

The feature of the evening will be the parade of the prize winners, an exhibition of the most beautiful specimens of horseflesh. The big thick-set Normans and shire horses, which take up the hour from 9 to 10. A hundred or more fine animals were prancing and snorting around the arena at a time, and some of them were ridden, but most of them were led.

In the afternoon the card includes the judging of trotting stallions, horses in harness, and the show of the day.

The feature of the evening will be the parade of the prize winners, an exhibition of the most beautiful specimens of horseflesh. The big thick-set Normans and shire horses, which take up the hour from 9 to 10. A hundred or more fine animals were prancing and snorting around the arena at a time, and some of them were ridden, but most of them were led.

In the afternoon the card includes the judging of trotting stallions, horses in harness, and the show of the day.

The feature of the evening will be the parade of the prize winners, an exhibition of the most beautiful specimens of horseflesh. The big thick-set Normans and shire horses, which take up the hour from 9 to 10. A hundred or more fine animals were prancing and snorting around the arena at a time, and some of them were ridden, but most of them were led.

In the afternoon the card includes the judging of trotting stallions, horses in harness, and the show of the day.

The feature of the evening will be the parade of the prize winners, an exhibition of the most beautiful specimens of horseflesh. The big thick-set Normans and shire horses, which take up the hour from 9 to 10. A hundred or more fine animals were prancing and snorting around the arena at a time, and some of them were ridden, but most of them were led.

In the afternoon the card includes the judging of trotting stallions, horses in harness, and the show of the day.

The feature of the evening will be the parade of the prize winners, an exhibition of the most beautiful specimens of horseflesh. The big thick-set Normans and shire horses, which take up the hour from 9 to 10. A hundred or more fine animals were prancing and snorting around the arena at a time, and some of them were ridden, but most of them were led.

In the afternoon the card includes the judging of trotting stallions, horses in harness, and the show of the day.

The feature of the evening will be the parade of the prize winners, an exhibition of the most beautiful specimens of horseflesh. The big thick-set Normans and shire horses, which take up the hour from 9 to 10. A hundred or more fine animals were prancing and snorting around the arena at a time, and some of them were ridden, but most of them were led.

Gerry Society's Refusal to Release Little Joe Millici.

Not Even an Order of a Supreme Court Judge Would Be Obeyed.

Justice Ryan Says the Boy Was Committed on Misrepresentation.

A startling state of affairs has been brought to light in the case of six-year-old Joe Millici, who is being forcibly detained by the Gerry Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children in defiance of an order of discharge granted by Justice Ryan. It appears that the Society claims and exercises a power paramount to that of even the Supreme Court, or, in fact, of any other tribunal in the State in matters relating to the custody of children.

Even if an order came, signed by a Justice of the Supreme Court, we could not surrender on any of the children placed under our care unless that order were accompanied by a discharge paper from the Gerry Society.

Such was the language used by Sister Marguerite last night at the office of the Mission of the Sisters of the Third Order of St. Francis, at Peekskill, when served with Justice Ryan's order to discharge Joe Millici.

The order was served by Justice Ryan, of the Supreme Court, and the Society's refusal to comply with the order places it in contempt of Court. The Sister was informed that the boy was committed on misrepresentation.

"I cannot help it," she replied. "We have strict orders from Sister Jenkins, of the Gerry Society, not to surrender a child committed at the instance of the Society whenever the papers of commitment are stamped with the Society's seal, as happens in this case."

"Is that the law?"
"I don't know. It is our order, and we have nothing else to guide us. In case we err and do not know it, it is our duty to follow the order of the Society."

"But the Gerry Society refuses to act upon the order," she replied.

"Well, then the child will have to remain here until the Society sees fit to direct otherwise," she replied.

"But, sister," interposed the reporter, "if you refuse to surrender the child you will be protected by the order granted by the court, and the Society will have to do an act of Christian charity, for Joe's mother is pleading away and pleading, while the Gerry Society is pleading away and pleading."

"But, sister," interposed the reporter, "if you refuse to surrender the child you will be protected by the order granted by the court, and the Society will have to do an act of Christian charity, for Joe's mother is pleading away and pleading, while the Gerry Society is pleading away and pleading."

"But, sister," interposed the reporter, "if you refuse to surrender the child you will be protected by the order granted by the court, and the Society will have to do an act of Christian charity, for Joe's mother is pleading away and pleading, while the Gerry Society is pleading away and pleading."

"But, sister," interposed the reporter, "if you refuse to surrender the child you will be protected by the order granted by the court, and the Society will have to do an act of Christian charity, for Joe's mother is pleading away and pleading, while the Gerry Society is pleading away and pleading."

"But, sister," interposed the reporter, "if you refuse to surrender the child you will be protected by the order granted by the court, and the Society will have to do an act of Christian charity, for Joe's mother is pleading away and pleading, while the Gerry Society is pleading away and pleading."

"But, sister," interposed the reporter, "if you refuse to surrender the child you will be protected by the order granted by the court, and the Society will have to do an act of Christian charity, for Joe's mother is pleading away and pleading, while the Gerry Society is pleading away and pleading."

"But, sister," interposed the reporter, "if you refuse to surrender the child you will be protected by the order granted by the court, and the Society will have to do an act of Christian charity, for Joe's mother is pleading away and pleading, while the Gerry Society is pleading away and pleading."

"But, sister," interposed the reporter, "if you refuse to surrender the child you will be protected by the order granted by the court, and the Society will have to do an act of Christian charity, for Joe's mother is pleading away and pleading, while the Gerry Society is pleading away and pleading."

"But, sister," interposed the reporter, "if you refuse to surrender the child you will be protected by the order granted by the court, and the Society will have to do an act of Christian charity, for Joe's mother is pleading away and pleading, while the Gerry Society is pleading away and pleading."

"But, sister," interposed the reporter, "if you refuse to surrender the child you will be protected by the order granted by the court, and the Society will have to do an act of Christian charity, for Joe's mother is pleading away and pleading, while the Gerry Society is pleading away and pleading."

"But, sister," interposed the reporter, "if you refuse to surrender the child you will be protected by the order granted by the court, and the Society will have to do an act of Christian charity, for Joe's mother is pleading away and pleading, while the Gerry Society is pleading away and pleading."

"But, sister," interposed the reporter, "if you refuse to surrender the child you will be protected by the order granted by the court, and the Society will have to do an act of Christian charity, for Joe's mother is pleading away and pleading, while the Gerry Society is pleading away and pleading."

"But, sister," interposed the reporter, "if you refuse to surrender the child you will be protected by the order granted by the court, and the Society will have to do an act of Christian charity, for Joe's mother is pleading away and pleading, while the Gerry Society is pleading away and pleading."

HELD FOR PERJURY.

Tables Turned on an Officer Who Arrested a Woman.

His Own Letters Disproved His Own Sworn Evidence.

Justice Kilbreth Denounced Him and Ordered His Arrest.

Police Officer Michael F. Fallon brought Mrs. Little F. Coleman, of 119 East Forty-seventh street, as a prisoner to Yorkville Court this morning on the charge of having solicited him last night in Fifth avenue near sixty-fourth street.

Mrs. Coleman told Justice Kilbreth that her arrest was a case of persecution, and passed some letters over to the magistrate, asking him to read them.

She had been locked up in the Fifty-first street station all night.

The letters were written by Fallon. Mrs. Coleman said that she had known the policeman four years, and he had continually annoyed her with letters, although she told him to let her alone.

Last evening, she said, he came to her house and insisted on seeing her. She told him to go away, and when he refused, she started for the police station, intending to have him arrested.

He followed her, and when they got to the station he made a complaint against her, and she was locked up in spite of her protestations.

Fallon denied these charges, but became confused when cross-questioned by the magistrate.

"This is the worst outrage I have ever known," said Justice Kilbreth, and he ordered the clerk to make out a complaint of perjury against Fallon and hold him in $1,000 bail to appear to-morrow.

The letters, which Fallon admitted he had written, were of a threatening character.

Fallon, who has been a policeman for two years, was formerly a saloon-keeper. Bernard Lynch, a saloon-keeper of Fifty-ninth street and Arch street, was called bail for him.

Report that the Parochial School Question Is Settled.

A subject for consideration at today's session of the Catholic Archbishops is the request forwarded from St. Louis and signed by thirty-seven of the ninety-nine priests in that diocese asking for the appointment of a coadjutor to the venerable Archbishop Kenrick.

The names of Bishops Spaulding, Keane, Marty and Fitzgerald are mentioned in the petition as suitable for the place.

Another subject of discussion was whether the societies of Old Fellows and Sons of Temperance should be sanctioned.

Yesterday's session was spent in discussing the parochial school question, and it is rumored that there was an interesting debate on the subject between Archbishop Keane and Bishop Keane.

The visiting Archbishops expressed themselves to-day as pleased with the reception tendered them last night by the Catholic Club, at which President-elect Cleveland was present.

Merchants Titus's Suicide.

An Inquest to be Held on His Body at Hartland.

Coroner Inquest of Mount Vernon, will today hold an inquest on the body of Edmund Titus, a retired New York produce merchant, who committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself to a raft in his house at Hartland, N. Y.

Titus was sixty-eight years old, and recently had been complaining of heart troubles. He was formerly a member of the produce firm of Titus, Frazier & Titus, in James slip. No cause can be assigned for killing himself.

HELD FOR PERJURY.

Tables Turned on an Officer Who Arrested a Woman.

His Own Letters Disproved His Own Sworn Evidence.

Justice Kilbreth Denounced Him and Ordered His Arrest.

Police Officer Michael F. Fallon brought Mrs. Little F. Coleman, of 119 East Forty-seventh street, as a prisoner to Yorkville Court this morning on the charge of having solicited him last night in Fifth avenue near sixty-fourth street.

Mrs. Coleman told Justice Kilbreth that her arrest was a case of persecution, and passed some letters over to the magistrate, asking him to read them.

She had been locked up in the Fifty-first street station all night.

The letters were written by Fallon. Mrs. Coleman said that she had known the policeman four years, and he had continually annoyed her with letters, although she told him to let her alone.

Last evening, she said, he came to her house and insisted on seeing her. She told him to go away, and when he refused, she started for the police station, intending to have him arrested.

He followed her, and when they got to the station he made a complaint against her, and she was locked up in spite of her protestations.

Fallon denied these charges, but became confused when cross-questioned by the magistrate.

"This is the worst outrage I have ever known," said Justice Kilbreth, and he ordered the clerk to make out a complaint of perjury against Fallon and hold him in $1,000 bail to appear to-morrow.

The letters, which Fallon admitted he had written, were of a threatening character.

Fallon, who has been a policeman for two years, was formerly a saloon-keeper. Bernard Lynch, a saloon-keeper of Fifty-ninth street and Arch street, was called bail for him.

Report that the Parochial School Question Is Settled.

A subject for consideration at today's session of the Catholic Archbishops is the request forwarded from St. Louis and signed by thirty-seven of the ninety-nine priests in that diocese asking for the appointment of a coadjutor to the venerable Archbishop Kenrick.

The names of Bishops Spaulding, Keane, Marty and Fitzgerald are mentioned in the petition as suitable for the place.

Another subject of discussion was whether the societies of Old Fellows and Sons of Temperance should be sanctioned.

Yesterday's session was spent in discussing the parochial school question, and it is rumored that there was an interesting debate on the subject between Archbishop Keane and Bishop Keane.

The visiting Archbishops expressed themselves to-day as pleased with the reception tendered them last night by the Catholic Club, at which President-elect Cleveland was present.

Merchants Titus's Suicide.

An Inquest to be Held on His Body at Hartland.

Coroner Inquest of Mount Vernon, will today hold an inquest on the body of Edmund Titus, a retired New York produce merchant, who committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself to a raft in his house at Hartland, N. Y.

Titus was sixty-eight years old, and recently had been complaining of heart troubles. He was formerly a member of the produce firm of Titus, Frazier & Titus, in James slip. No cause can be assigned for killing himself.

HELD FOR PERJURY.

Tables Turned on an Officer Who Arrested a Woman.

His Own Letters Disproved His Own Sworn Evidence.

Justice Kilbreth Denounced Him and Ordered His Arrest.

Police Officer Michael F. Fallon brought Mrs. Little F. Coleman, of 119 East Forty-seventh street, as a prisoner to Yorkville Court this morning on the charge of having solicited him last night in Fifth avenue near sixty-fourth street.

Mrs. Coleman told Justice Kilbreth that her arrest was a case of persecution, and passed some letters over to the magistrate, asking him to read them.

She had been locked up in the Fifty-first street station all night.

The letters were written by Fallon. Mrs. Coleman said that she had known the policeman four years, and he had continually annoyed her with letters, although she told him to let her alone.

Last evening, she said, he came to her house and insisted on seeing her. She told him to go away, and when he refused, she started for the police station, intending to have him arrested.

He followed her, and when they got to the station he made a complaint against her, and she was locked up in spite of her protestations.

Fallon denied these charges, but became confused when cross-questioned by the magistrate.

"This is the worst outrage I have ever known," said Justice Kilbreth, and he ordered the clerk to make out a complaint of perjury against Fallon and hold him in $1,000 bail to appear to-morrow.

The letters, which Fallon admitted he had written, were of a threatening character.

Fallon, who has been a policeman for two years, was formerly a saloon-keeper. Bernard Lynch, a saloon-keeper of Fifty-ninth street and Arch street, was called bail for him.

Report that the Parochial School Question Is Settled.

A subject for consideration at today's session of the Catholic Archbishops is the request forwarded from St. Louis and signed by thirty-seven of the ninety-nine priests in that diocese asking for the appointment of a coadjutor to the venerable Archbishop Kenrick.

The names of Bishops Spaulding, Keane, Marty and Fitzgerald are mentioned in the petition as suitable for the place.

Another subject of discussion was whether the societies of Old Fellows and Sons of Temperance should be sanctioned.

Yesterday's session was spent in discussing the parochial school question, and it is rumored that there was an interesting debate on the subject between Archbishop Keane and Bishop Keane.

The visiting Archbishops expressed themselves to-day as pleased with the reception tendered them last night by the Catholic Club, at which President-elect Cleveland was present.

Merchants Titus's Suicide.

An Inquest to be Held on His Body at Hartland.

Coroner Inquest of Mount Vernon, will today hold an inquest on the body of Edmund Titus, a retired New York produce merchant, who committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself to a raft in his house at Hartland, N. Y.

Titus was sixty-eight years old, and recently had been complaining of heart troubles. He was formerly a member of the produce firm of Titus, Frazier & Titus, in James slip. No cause can be assigned for killing himself.

HELD FOR PERJURY.

Tables Turned on an Officer Who Arrested a Woman.

His Own Letters Disproved His Own Sworn Evidence.

Justice Kilbreth Denounced Him and Ordered His Arrest.

Police Officer Michael F. Fallon brought Mrs. Little F. Coleman, of 119 East Forty-seventh street, as a prisoner to Yorkville Court this morning on the charge of having solicited him last night in Fifth avenue near sixty-fourth street.

Mrs. Coleman told Justice Kilbreth that her arrest was a case of persecution, and passed some letters over to the magistrate, asking him to read them.

She had been locked up in the Fifty-first street station all night.

The letters were written by Fallon. Mrs. Coleman said that she had known the policeman four years, and he had continually annoyed her with letters, although she told him to let her alone.

Last evening, she said, he came to her house and insisted on seeing her. She told him to go away, and when he refused, she started for the police station, intending to have him arrested.

He followed her, and when they got to the station he made a complaint against her, and she was locked up in spite of her protestations.

Fallon denied these charges, but became confused when cross-questioned by the magistrate.

"This is the worst outrage I have ever known," said Justice Kilbreth, and he ordered the clerk to make out a complaint of perjury against Fallon and hold him in $1,000 bail to appear to-morrow.

The letters, which Fallon admitted he had written, were of a threatening character.

Fallon, who has been a policeman for two years, was formerly a saloon-keeper. Bernard Lynch, a saloon-keeper of Fifty-ninth street and Arch street, was called bail for him.

Report that the Parochial School Question Is Settled.

A subject for consideration at today's session of the Catholic Archbishops is the request forwarded from St. Louis and signed by thirty-seven of the ninety-nine priests in that diocese asking for the appointment of a coadjutor to the venerable Archbishop Kenrick.

The names of Bishops Spaulding, Keane, Marty and Fitzgerald are mentioned in the petition as suitable for the place.

Another subject of discussion was whether the societies of Old Fellows and Sons of Temperance should be sanctioned.

Yesterday's session was spent in discussing the parochial school question, and it is rumored that there was an interesting debate on the subject between Archbishop Keane and Bishop Keane.

The visiting Archbishops expressed themselves to-day as pleased with the reception tendered them last night by the Catholic Club, at which President-elect Cleveland was present